Freelancer.com CEO Matt Barrie wins 2011 Ernst & Young Tech Entrepreneur of the Year award!

Freelancer.com CEO chosen from among Australia’s greatest entrepreneurial minds; intent on making Freelancer.com Australia’s equivalent of eBay, Facebook or Google.

SYDNEY: November 18, 2011 – Freelancer.com, the world’s largest outsourcing and crowdsourcing marketplace, proudly announced that CEO Matt Barrie is the 2011 Ernst & Young Technology Entrepreneur of the Year winner.

“This is a great honor, to be recognized by the leading lights in Australia’s business and startup communities,” said Barrie.

Ernst & Young announced the winners last night at a black tie awards ceremony in Victoria. Joining Barrie in the winner’s circle were iiNet founder Michael Malone (Entrepreneur of the Year and Listed category winner), Brian Siemsen (Siemsen group, Emerging category winner), Naomi Simson (RedBalloon, Industry category winner), David McMahon (McMahon Services, Services category winner) and Melinda Cruz (Miracle Babies Foundation, 2011 Social Entrepreneur).

Barrie impressed the 9 member judging panel, which selected the Freelancer.com CEO based on 6 categories: Entrepreneurial spirit, Innovation, Personal integrity and influence, Financial performance, Strategic direction, and National and global impact.

The 2011 Ernst & Young award caps off a very impressive year for Matt Barrie. He was named the inaugural BRW Entrepreneur of the Year, chosen as a featured speaker at SXSW festival, and also won two Webby Awards in New York.

Speaking about his success and ambition for Freelancer.com Barrie said, “I want Freelancer.com to be Australia’s first big consumer Internet company, like eBay, Facebook or Google. Those companies changed the world and brought us all closer together and our mission is to have the same lasting impact.”

Freelancer.com is already the world’s largest outsourcing marketplace, with 3 million users, all over the world, and has saved small businesses in the west billions of dollars getting small projects done, such as building websites, copywriting, graphic design and data entry.

“Technology is disrupting the global labor force and leveling the playing field. There’s another 5 billion people coming online, who are determined to raise their living standards. Businesses in the developed world, through Freelancer.com, are able to play an integral part in helping these people find work. It’s a win-win situation for everyone,” he concluded.
