Freelancer.com nominated twice in the 19th Annual Webby Awards

SYDNEY, April 8th: Freelancer.com (ASX: FLN) today announced that it has been officially selected as a Nominee in the 19th Annual Webby Awards for Best Employment Website and Best Professional Services Website by the International Academy of Digital Arts & Sciences. At the same time, the company announced that it had passed 15 million registered users, cementing its reputation as the world's largest freelancing and crowdsourcing marketplace in terms of total number of registered users and projects posted.

The Webby Awards is the leading international award honouring excellence on the Internet, similar to the Grammy, Oscar and Emmy Awards for music, film and television. It is presented by the International Academy of Digital Arts and Sciences (IADAS) — a 1,000+ member judging body. The Executive Academy is comprised of industry luminaries such as actor Kevin Spacey, musician David Bowie, Internet inventor Vint Cerf, President & Editor-in-Chief of AOL Huffington Post Media Group Arianna Huffington, Twitter Founder Biz Stone, Vice Media Founder and CEO, Shane Smith, Tumblr's David Karp, Director of Harvard's Berkman Center for Internet & Society, Susan P. Crawford, Ogilvy Brazil's Anselmo Ramos, and The Weinstein Company Co-Founder Harvey Weinstein. Members also include writers and editors from publications such as The New York Times, Wired, Details, Fast Company, Elle, The Los Angeles Times, Vibe, and WallPaper.

Freelancer is a four-time Webby award-winner, having won in the 2011, 2012 and 2013 award ceremonies.

The 18th Annual Webby Awards received 12,000 entries from over 60 countries and all 50 states and generated over 2.2 billion media impressions worldwide.
